Meet The Managing Director

In recent months Metropolitan Security has been going through some exciting changes due to business growth, both with new business and organic growth.

Our former Managing Director and now CEO Jeff Bothwell, appointed Bill Mannix, Metropolitan's new Managing Director based on Bill's industry experience.

Some of you may have already met with Bill face-to-face, as he has been busy conducting on site visits. He is a very much hands on "MD" and as mentioned joins the company with a wealth of Industry knowledge.

Bill joined the security industry in 1989, working as a security officer and supervisor during the miners' strikes, and has been in the industry ever since. He has worked his way through the industry, working as a security officer, supervisor, mobile inspector, response officer, retail security officer, store detective, control room manager, operations manager, operations director, and now managing director. Our CEO Jeff Bothwell said, "It was an easy decision for me to appoint Bill to Managing Director due to his experience in this industry and his personal understanding of the boots on the ground." With Bill's leadership, it's exciting times for Metropolitan, and the whole team has worked well with Bill over the past few months, and we are proud to share how the company's growth has continued under his leadership.
